The course will enable you to:

- Describe the importance of climate information in adaptation planning and decision-making
- Identify technical resources for assessing climate risks
Explore the role of National Hydro-meteorological Services in the NAP process
Discuss how priority climate actions can be enhanced by climate scientific information
Identify climate products and services that support NAPs
Discuss how to promote effective partnerships between climate information producers and users