With the FATF revised recommendations in 2012, requirements to combat money laundering and terrorist financing have been specifically strengthened in areas with higher risks or where implementation could be enhanced. Financial institutions and other designated sectors are required to adopt a risk-based approach to apply their resources to higher risk areas. Pressure is thus increasing on institutions to comply with the money laundering regulations and take effective steps to combat money laundering. This course aims to provide basic money laundering training to both public and private sector officials in a better, quicker and more efficient way by making them familiar with many of the laws and regulations now enhanced to deter money laundering. It will give a holistic overview of money laundering standards and issues, including definitions, various processes of money laundering, and impact of money laundering on international development.

At the end of the course, the participants should be able to:

- Discuss the basic concept of money laundering and its various processes;
- Identify the economic impacts of money laundering and terrorist financing on international development;
- Examine the efficiency of international standards to combat money laundering and terrorist financing;

- Summarize the legal requirements and preventive measures to be adopted by developing countries to combat money laundering; and
- Analyze a case study on UK regulatory regime to combat money laundering and make necessary arguments.
