Item 125 of the provisional agenda*

Proposed programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007Financial viability of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research*Report of the Secretary-GeneralSummary*

In section X of its resolution 59/276 of 23 December 2004, the General Assembly, while stressing the importance of maintaining the current level of the training programmes of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR), requested the Secretary-General to submit at the beginning of its sixtieth session, and prior to the introduction of the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007, a comprehensive report on all aspects of the financial situation of the Institute, including proposals which would address the long-term, sound and predictable funding of rent and maintenance costs.

In order to maintain and/or expand the current level of training programmes for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy and provide for long-term, sound and predictable funding of rent and maintenance costs, it is reiterated that UNITAR could be provided with an annual subvention, not exceeding its annual rental, maintenance and other administrative costs, associated with conducting the core training programme for the previous year. The General Assembly may wish to consider the present report in the context of the proposed programme budget of the biennium 2006-2007.

* A/60/150.

I. Introduction

1. In paragraphs 2 through 5 of section X of its resolution 59/276, the General Assembly:

(a) Stressed the importance of maintaining the current level of the training programmes of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) and requested the Board of Trustees to make every effort to ensure that in 2005 the level of training programmes would be maintained;

(b) Stressed also the need for continued consideration of the issues related to the Institute's rent, rental rates and maintenance costs, taking into account its financial situation with a view to its expeditious resolution;

(c) Requested the Secretary-General to submit, as a priority, to the General Assembly at the beginning of its sixtieth session, prior to the introduction of the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007, a comprehensive report on all aspects of the financial situation of the Institute, including proposals that would address the long-term, sound and predictable funding of rent and maintenance costs;

(d) Decided to consider the outcome of its consideration of that report in the context of the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007.

2. The present report has been prepared in compliance with that resolution.

II. Background

3. The issue of the cost of rent and maintenance charged to UNITAR and its relation to the Institute's core training programmes for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy has been considered by the General Assembly on an annual basis since 1997, when the Assembly, in its resolution 52/206, called upon the Secretary-General to explore all possible ways and means to provide additional facilities to the Institute for conducting programmes and training courses that were provided at no cost to States and to their representatives accredited to United Nations Offices in New York, Nairobi, Geneva and Vienna.

4. In response to the provisions of a number of resolutions regarding the rental and maintenance costs charged to the Institute, the Secretary-General reiterated that, taking into account the related provisions of General Assembly resolutions 41/213 and 47/227 and the fact that the United Nations regular budget should not have to bear any part of the rental expenses of bodies supported by extrabudgetary funds, he is not in a position to propose a waiver or reduction of the rental rates and maintenance costs charged to UNITAR without the express decision of the Assembly in this regard.

5. Consequently, in his report (A/58/544), submitted in response to the provisions of General Assembly resolution 56/208, the Secretary-General proposed that the Assembly consider, in the light of the training programme for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy, an annual subvention of $165,630, in respect of its rental maintenance and other administrative costs, from the regular budget of the United Nations. Related amendments to paragraph 13 of article VIII of the statute of UNITAR, which states that no extra cost to the regular budget of the United Nations may be incurred as a result of the utilization by the Institute of the general administrative personnel and financial services of the United Nations, were also proposed.

III. Existing arrangements for financing the activities of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research

6. In accordance with the statute of UNITAR, the expenses of the training programmes for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy and their operating costs, as well as other administrative expenses for maintaining normal to day-to-day operations, including rental and maintenance costs, are covered by the Institute's General Fund. Other specialized training programmes, research and study projects, designed and conducted by the Institute for other United Nations bodies, specialized agencies, Member States and non-governmental organizations, are financed from the Special Purpose Grants Fund on a fully reimbursable basis, without resulting in any financial obligations to the General Fund. Special purpose grants shall cover, in addition to the full costs of implementing the project (direct costs), including administrative costs, an execution fee that should be determined by the Executive Director of the Institute on a case-by-case basis but should not be less than 13 per cent in each case (see General Assembly resolution 42/197, sect. I.C).

7. The UNITAR General Fund is financed from voluntary contributions made by Governments, intergovernmental organizations, foundations and other non-governmental sources, as well as from the programme support costs reimbursement income generated by expenditures of the Special Purpose Grants Fund. Owing to a declining level of contributions to the General Fund and an increase in the number and scope of special purpose grants, support costs reimbursement income has gradually become the major source of income for the General Fund.

IV. Financial situation of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research and related conclusions at the forty-third session of the Board of Trustees

8. During its forty-third session, held in Geneva on 26 and 27 April 2005, the Board of Trustees of UNITAR considered the financial situation of the Institute, discussed resolution 59/276 at length and submitted its conclusion, contained in paragraph 24 below, to the Secretary-General.

9. Despite the significant fund-raising efforts on the part of the Institute, the voluntary contributions by country to the General Fund over the last four years (see annex I) are still at a modest level, averaging a mere $350,000, or 17.5 per cent of the level during the 1970s and 1980s, an amount that is not sufficient to fully cover the costs of training for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy. As a trend, voluntary contributions to the UNITAR General Fund have significantly declined over the period from 1965 to 2004 (see annexes II and III).

10. Owing to the expansion of the Special Purpose Grants and the consequent increase in programme support costs paid by the programmes to the General Fund, the general financial situation of the Institute has improved slightly: the excess of income over expenditure for the General Fund was over $400,000 as at 31 December 2004 (see annexes IV and V). This outcome is in contrast to the results from the past few years, which showed an excess of expenditure over income resulting in the reduction of the fund balance and consequently raised concerns regarding the future of the Institute.

11. Although the objective set by the Board in 1994, to bring the fund balance of the General Fund to at least $1,000,000, has been reached ($1,135,748 as at 31 December 2004), this does not mean that the General Fund has overcome its vulnerability. UNITAR should endeavour to maintain that level to guard against "lean periods" when funding may drop for various reasons. This is necessary and even vital, considering that UNITAR depends on voluntary contributions, with payments made throughout the year. Carryover is the only way to avoid a serious cash-flow crisis. In any case, the current excess of income is not sufficient to carry out, on a full-cost basis, the training courses that UNITAR is requested by the General Assembly to prepare and conduct, if additional funds for this purpose are not received.

12. The fund balance for the Special Purpose Grants Fund was $8,564,689 as at 31 December 2004. Although this balance appears significant and gives the impression of excess funds, these funds are in fact all earmarked for specific projects. All funding is paid in advance and some donors fund multi-year projects up front.

13. The actual positive balance of the General Fund results mainly from an increase in programme support income received from the Special Purpose Grants. However, this income should be primarily for covering administrative costs relating to special purpose grants, overall administration and management of the Institute and, ideally, fund other training programmes offered to representatives from Member States, which should be financed from voluntary contributions to the General Fund.

14. The recent improvement in the financial situation of UNITAR is also the result of strict management centred on three main axes:

(a) Continuous fund-raising with the Member States: this has produced positive results, even if they are still insufficient in comparison with the efforts put forth;

(b) Systematically charging the 13 per cent of programme support costs (overhead) to programmes grants whenever possible. The average rate of overhead reached more than 11 per cent in 2004;

(c) Supporting the growth of Special Purpose Grants programmes, which are an important source of financing for the General Fund through programme support costs.

15. Despite these developments in the financial situation, payments owed to the United Nations for rent maintenance and other services provided in 2003 and 2004 in the amount of $202,700 have not been disbursed (see annex VII).

V. Predictable funding of rent and maintenance cost and its relation to the core training programme for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy

16. As indicated in paragraph 6 above, the expenses of the training programmes for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy, as well as other administrative expenses for maintaining normal to day-to-day operations, including rental and maintenance costs, should be covered by the Institute's General Fund. Consequently, after the deduction of all administrative costs, including those pertaining to the overall administration and management of the Institute and rental and maintenance costs, the remaining balance should cover the training programme for international cooperation and diplomacy. If, as provided in General Assembly resolution 42/197, section I, paragraph 3, the core training programme, financed from the General Fund, is adjusted in the light of the financial resources available, there may not be additional resource requirements above the approved budget. However, if the core training programmes for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy are maintained at the current level and/or expanded, the question of prioritizing expenditure objectives, taking into account the varying levels of contributions to the General Fund and of the special purpose grants support costs income, may arise, thus affecting other parts of the General Fund, namely administration and management expenses as well as rent and maintenance costs.

17. In this connection, it must be underlined that while the Special Purpose Grants Fund is reaching a satisfactory level and is on the increase, the General Fund, while slightly improved, remains very vulnerable and cannot ensure the predictable long-term funding of the core training programme offered by the Institute to diplomats. Given the present level of contributions to the General Fund, UNITAR cannot absorb its rent and maintenance costs and at the same time, maintain and/or expand its core training programmes. In this regard, the Board of Trustees, at its forty-third session, maintained its request to have the rental and maintenance costs, currently covered by the General Fund, borne by the regular budget of the United Nations.

18. In 2006-2007, the expected costs of the rental of office space for staff funded by the General Fund, including those working on the programme for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy, as well as a related part of maintenance, shuttle, messenger and security and cleaning costs, would amount to $242,385. Annex VI shows the total 2006-2007 costs of rent and maintenance in Geneva and New York, estimated on the basis of the existing 2004-2005 rates.

19. It is expected that, in 2004-2005, the costs of the programme for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy offered to diplomats and delegates accredited to the Organization in New York, Geneva and Vienna would amount to $675,000. UNITAR has also made a cost-assessment, assuming a diversification of the programmes in five venues: Nairobi (headquarters of the United Nations Environment Programme and the United Nations Human Settlements Programme) and four cities that host regional commissions, namely Addis Ababa, Bangkok, Beirut and Santiago. The assessment includes two one-week training workshops in each city per year. It is estimated that implementing the recommendation of diversifying venues would cost $300,000 per biennium (see annex VIII).

20. The UNITAR General Fund budget for the biennium 2004-2005 was approved in the amount of $2,300,000, including provisions for the core training programme

($675,000) and administrative expenses for maintaining normal to day-to-day operations in New York and Geneva ($1,625,000), including rent and maintenance costs in New York and Geneva ($420,500). It is expected that the final 2004-2005 expenditures would be within this approved level of $2,300,000. However, if, following the provisions of General Assembly resolution 59/252, training events organized by the Institute in 2005 are held in cities hosting regional commissions, additional requirements of approximately $150,000 per year could arise, which the Institute could not cover from within its existing resources.

21. In conclusion, although the overall financial situation of UNITAR has been improving, the continuing requests for the core training programme for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy to be maintained at the current level and/or expanded to include other training events constitutes a challenge to the Institute's available resources. This is especially true given the low level of contributions to the General Fund and the possibility that the office space provided to UNITAR at subsidized rates at the Maison internationale de l'environnement in Geneva may not be available in the event that more environmental programmes need space in Geneva in the future.

22. In such a situation, subvention from the United Nations regular budget may be necessary to: (a) maintain the training programme for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy at its present level; (b) diversify the venues of the events organized by the Institute and to include the cities hosting regional commissions in the developing regions, as proposed by the General Assembly in its resolution 59/252; and (c) address to a larger extent the numerous requests for training and capacity-building received from developing countries and countries with economies in transition.

23. The Secretary-General therefore reiterates the position, as expressed in his previous report on UNITAR (A/58/544), that the General Assembly should consider, in the light of the training programme for international cooperation and multilateral diplomacy, an annual subvention to UNITAR from the regular budget of the United Nations. The subvention should be equivalent to the amount of annual rental, maintenance and other administrative costs associated with conducting the core training programme for the previous year. The subvention should be subject to review by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions in the context of its usual consideration of the UNITAR budget for the next financial period.

VI. Conclusion

24. The General Assembly may wish to consider the present report in the context of the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2006-2007.
